DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:
 - I. Claims 1 – 8 and 27 - 29, drawn to a method of reducing back injury, classified in class 602, subclass 19.
 - II. Claims 9 – 14 and 40 - 53, drawn to a support belt for reducing back injury, classified in class 602, subclass 19.
 - III. Claims 15 - 20, drawn to a method of reducing fatigue and improving lifting and lowering technique, classified in class 602, subclass 19.
 - IV. Claims 21 - 26, drawn to a method of testing ergonomic support belts, classified in class 600, subclass 595.
 - V. Claims 30 - 39, drawn to a system for modeling response of an applied load to a subject, classified in class 600, subclass 595.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

2. Inventions I, III and IV are unrelated. Inventions are unrelated if it can be shown that they are not disclosed as capable of use together and they have different modes of operation, different functions, or different effects (MPEP § 806.04, MPEP § 808.01). In the instant case the different inventions I, III and IV have different modes of operation, different functions and different effects. Invention I is related to a method of reducing back injury by applying two different levels of pressure around the lower trunk of a user. Invention III is related to a method of reducing fatigue and improving lifting and lowering technique by placing a support belt on a user in a location lower than an average position for placement of support belts. Invention IV is related to a method of testing ergonomic support belts wherein loads are applied to a subject wearing the support belt.

Art Unit: 3736

3. Inventions II and V are unrelated. Inventions are unrelated if it can be shown that they are not disclosed as capable of use together and they have different modes of operation, different functions, or different effects (MPEP § 806.04, MPEP § 808.01). In the instant case the different inventions have different modes of operation and different functions. Invention II is related to a support belt for reducing injury having protrusions. Invention V is related to a system for modeling response of an applied load to a subject including a computer and sensors.

4. Inventions I, II and III are related as process and apparatus for its practice. The inventions are distinct if it can be shown that either: (1) the process as claimed can be practiced by another materially different apparatus or by hand, or (2) the apparatus as claimed can be used to practice another and materially different process. (MPEP § 806.05(e)). In this case the process as claimed can be practiced by a materially different apparatus; the process does not require protrusions.

5. Inventions IV and V are related as process and apparatus for its practice. The inventions are distinct if it can be shown that either: (1) the process as claimed can be practiced by another materially different apparatus or by hand, or (2) the apparatus as claimed can be used to practice another and materially different process. (MPEP § 806.05(e)). In this case the process as claimed can be practiced by a materially different apparatus; the process does not require sensors or a computer.

6. Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by their different classification, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

7. Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art because of their recognized divergent subject matter, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.
